[FOR THE BEAVER ARGUS.]

BRIGHTON, May 30, '64.

TO HON. THOMAS CUNNINGHAM—Sir: The last Beaver Argus announces you as a candidate for election as member of Congress from this District. As, in all probability, questions of the greatest moment to our Union, National interests, and future peace, will come before the Congress of which you are proposed as a member, I have thought it would be as agreeable to you, as it would be to many citizens, that you make known, through the Argus, at an early day, your opinions and the part you would take in Congress, if elected, on some of the prominent questions arising out of this war, and likely to come before the next Congress for decision. I know your speech at New Brighton, pending the last October election, is full and explicit on the subject of the war, and the support due the Government in its prosecution to the subjection of treason and rebellion; but there are other questions of perhaps no less importance, which many would like to hear more fully and particularly, from you upon. It is not necessary that I should specify them. Some of them are embraced in the motto you proclaimed as yours, and which you urged the people to support, in your speech above referred to, viz: "The Constitution as it is, and the Union as it was." "I take this motto against traitors and treason everywhere, North and South." An editorial leader of the last Argus alludes to this motto as one that "may serve for a party rallying cry to cheat and deceive the men," &c.

You may think as I do, that some explanation is due to the people and to yourself, of your adoption of the "rallying cry" of the Democratic party at this time, and whether or no you give it the same meaning and import which members of that party do.

I am respectfully, etc..
"E PLURIBUS UNUM."

☞ An official report of the killed and wounded in the late battes, up to May 25th, present the facts that 4,000 men were killed, 25,000 wounded, and 5,000 missing—the latter includes stragglers and prisoners. It is also stated, on the same accurate authority, that not more than ten per cent. have been dangerously wounded, and that a large number will be ready for the field within the next two weeks.—This statement should go far to soothe the anxiety of thousands who are interested in the fate and condition of those brave defenders of the flag.

YANKEE LIBERALITY.—Up to within a week, the subscriptions made to the fund for the relief of the suffering Tennesseeans, in Massachusetts, Mr. Everett announces to be $90,343 What an evidence of the living, glowing patriotism and philanthropy of the Old Bay State.

What Will be the Verdict of History?

Hereafter when the American people and the friends of human freedom throughout the world, shall sit in judgment upon the conduct of the men who, in the time of the nation's trouble claim to lead the Democratic party, their solemn decision will be one of absolute condemnation. So utterly derelict to virtue and to patriotism have these men become, so exclusively and entirely influenced by selfish, venal and unprincipled purposes, that not even this mighty rebellion, for the overthrow of this Republic, with all its momentous issues can lift them up from the mean and low stand-point from which they view all the questions at issue. These men have so long trodden in the muddy paths of political iniquity, that they have continued to grovel on in the mire whilst statesmen and patriots have been everywhere arousing the people to do battle against despotism. It is true there are many of those who once led the Democratic party who have nobly burst the shackles, and come forth to participate in the glorious struggle, and have redeemed their names from the lasting shame and infamy which must forever cling to all who directly or indirectly played into the hands of treason against their country.

The enormity of the guilt which has aided and given encouragement to a conspiracy against the very existence of the greatest Republic that ever existed, either in ancient or modern times, cannot be properly or fully estimated. These men had openly pledged themselves, to support true democratic principles, and to support, with all their power, the principles of universal equality, urging it as the distinctive peculiarity of their party, and constantly denying to other political organizations equal devotion and sincerity in support of this great Republic.

The Southern Slave despots have made no secrets of their base and wicked designs. With one hand they would strike down this free Republic, and then reduce to abject slavery the very instruments who had done their dirty work. The poor whites were to be disfranchised as they had always virtually been, and a military despotism was to be erected on our Southern border. If that despotism could be once erected, European Governmets would lend it a hearty support, and Northern troubles created by the enemies of free Government, claiming to be Democrats, would prevent any interruption by what might remain of our nationality. Nay, the traitor leaders North and South have threatened to agitate until the free States, weakened by division and dissention, should be torn in pieces.

The Northern Democratic leaders (so-called) knows all about this. The rebel leaders have openly proclaimed their intention. Particularly after the fall of Fort Sumter were they candid and out spoken, having no vision of the approaching day of retribution, when the national cannon should crumble that fortress into dust, and the insulted flag of the free should again triumphantly waive over its ruins. In the excitement of their temporary victory won by that Prince of braggarts and liars, Beauregard, with ten thousand men over the noble band of seventy under command of the immortal Anderson, the traitors threatened invasion of the North, and their subjugation They would, and their design was to overthow this free Republic, and their democratic friends in the North, under the leadership of Vallandigham, Seymour, Woodward and others, were of such designs, and stood ready to give them such aid as was in their power.

The organs of that corrupt party have endeavored to apologize for, and and in every way extenuated the guilt of men whose hearts have been steeped in perjury, and whose hands have been and are now reeking with blood of murdered patriots. All their censure has been reserved for that loyal Administration and those valiant soldiers of the Republic who are now driving back the armies of rebellion, and who stand in the breach whilst traitors, North and South, are assaulting the national edifice. They were certainly entitled, in so noble a cause, to the earnest and hearty support of every Northern man whose soul was not steeped in treason, and even partizans might have relaxed their opposition when the life of the nation was imperilled. Many noble and patriotic men, rising superior to all party feelings and obligations, have done so.—They will have their reward in the approval of their countrymen, and in the commendation of the future historians of America. But as for those demagogues who falsely call themselves Democrats, and unblushingly aided and abetted this most foul and unnatural rebellion, in order that some poor, paltry party designs may hereafter be possibly accomplished, no condemation can fitly mark their infamous conduct. They could have been pardoned for long devotion to Southern slave power, if they had manfully cast it off when it armed itself against the government. That they have not chosen to do so, but have aided and comforted treason by a thousand acts of deepest wrong is their grave offense against liberty and humanity, which can never be forgotten or forgiven by the American people.

Under a wise overruling Providence the Union armies, advancing against the foes of human freedom, under Gen. Grant, this unholy rebellion, with its cause, will be soon crushed; then, a terrible retribution awaits those who have so far forgotten their duty to their country as to conspire with its enemies. The withering scorn and contempt of all good and wise men most surely awaits them.

Battle Between Butler and Beauregard by Moonlight.

Lieut. Commanding Lowry, of the navy, left Gen. Butler's headquarters, on the James river, Sunday morning, May 22d, and arrived in Washington on the following Tuesday. He states that Beauregard made a desperate assault upon Gen. Butler's centre, commanded by Gen. Gillmore, on Saturday night, by moonlight. Deep ravines protect the works in front of Gen. Butler's right and left; hence the attack was made exclusively on the centre. Beauregard led the assaulting column in person. His force altogether numbered at least 40,000 men, and they were all massed and thrown into this fight.

Commander Lowry describes the attack as the most impetuous and promising for a time in the series of charges made, that could be imagined. The rebels yelled as they came up like wild men. Gillmore kept his batteries silent until the enemy, massed, was within the best possible distance and range, when the word was given, and the death dealing cannon opened along our whole centre.

In an instant the rebel shooting ceased; the defiant column advanced no longer. Nothing but a skeleton was left of it to reel and stagger back.—Beauregard rallied new men to the breach, and again and again Gillmore hurled the defiant traitors back. The battle lasted two hours, closing about midnight, and was probably one of the most desperate conflicts for the time it occupied, and the number of men engaged, that has occurred during this war.

There is little doubt that Beauregard was reinforced for this occasion with the hope of overpowering Gen. Butler. Instead of doing so, however, he was gallantly and completely repulsed with terrific slaughter.

During the battle the gunboats on the James and Appomattox rivers shelled the enemy, doing great execution.

Gen. Butler was commanding in person during the entire battle, and at times very much exposed.

The position occupied by Butler's forces on a neck of land formed by the course of the rivers, is impregnable. It is sure death and defeat to any force, however formidable, that may attempt to take it.

Our loss on Saturday night, was comparatively slight, as we were fighting behind works, but the enemy's loss must have been very large, from the fact that they concentrated upon the centre, in masses, and were not fired upon until near enough to be mowed down with certainty. Commander Lowry says he saw the enemy's ranks completely swept away, one after the other. The whole affair is a complete success on the part of Gen. Butler, and has proved awfully expensive to Beauregard.

FORTRESS MONROE, May 24—4 P.M.—The steamer Thomas Powell, General Butler's dispatch boat, has just arrived, and reports everything quiet.—There has been no fighting since Saturday night, when from the last accounts the enemy received a severe punishment for their attempted night surprise. They buried their dead under a flag of truce.

LATEST.—5 p. m.—This morning Gen. Gillmore went out on a reconnoisance, and at 3:30 a. m., met the enemy in some force, and after an engagement of an hour and a half, he completely routed them. Our loss is very slight. It is reported that nearly half of Beauregard's forces left him yesterday, and marched towards Richmond, probably to reinforce Lee. The rebels have made nine attacks on our entrenchments, and have been repulsed each time.

The Draft of July 1st.

The Eastern papers are urging their readers to bear in mind the important fact that a draft will be made under the National laws on the ensuing 1st of July, to meet the pressing want of our armies in the field. This fact was made known some time since, but appears to have been overshadowed by more exciting affairs.—Lest it should be forgotton and lost sight of, the Provost Marshal General, says the Philadelphia Gazette, has sent the following telegraphic dispatch to his assistants throughout the country:

WASHINGTON, May 19, 1864.

To Major C. C. Gilbert, A. A. P. M. Gen., Philadelphia—Confer with your State authorities and endeavor to get the different districts and sub-districts to commence raising men at once, with a view to the new call referred to in dispatch of yesterday from the Secretary of War to General Dix.—It will be greatly to the advantage of the different towns, counties, &c., to save time by commencing immediately on assumed quotas. Spare no efforts to complete the revision of enrollment at the earliest possble day. The exact new quotas will be based upon it. I want it reported by the 10th of June.

(Signed) JAMES B. FRY,
Provost Marshal General.

☞ The United States Christian Commission received on Monday from the Boston Exchange a subscription of forty seven hundred dollars in aid of the wounded soldiers.

From the Army.

WASHINGTON, May 28—9.50 P. M.

MAJ. GEN. DIX:—An official dispatch from the Head Quarters of the army of the Potomac, at Mogahick Church, ten miles from Hanover town, dated yesterday afternoon, 5 P. M., has just been received. It says that our army was withdrawn to the north side of the North Anna Thursday night, and moved towards Hanover town, the place designed for crossing the Pamunky.

At 9 o'clock yesterday (Friday) morning, Sheridan with the 1st and 2d divisions of cavalry, took possession of the Hanover ferry and Hanover town, finding there only a rebel vidette The 1st division of the 9th corps arrived at 10 A. M, and now hold the place with sufficient force of cavalry, infantry and artillery to resist any attack likely to be made upon him. The remainder of the corps is pressing forward with rapidity.

A later dispatch, dated 7 o'clock this morning, 28th, from Headquarters, Megahick Church, has also been received. It reports that everything goes on finely. Weather clear and cool. The troops come up rapidly and in great spirits, and the army will be beyond the Pamunky by noon.

Breckinridge is at Hanover Court House, with a force variously reported from 30,000 to 100,000 men. Wickham and Lomax's brigades of cavalry are also there.

The dispatch further states that after seizing Hanover Ferry yesterday, we captured seventy-five cavalry men, including six officers, who say that the rebel cavalry is exceedingly demoralized, and flee before ours on every occasion.

A dispatch from Gen. Sherman, May 27—6 a m., near Dallas, Ga., reports that the enemy, discovering his move to Allatoona, marched to meet our forces at Dallas. Our columns met the enemy and pressed them back about three miles to the point where the roads fork to Atlanta and Marietta. Here Johnston has a strong line made of parapets of timber and earth. Gen. Sherman's right is at Dallas, the center about three miles North. The country is densely wooded and broken, and no roads of any consequence. We have had many sharp encounters, but nothing decisive.

No dispatches from any other field of operations have been received to-day.

[Signed] E. M. STANTON,
Secretary of War.

NEW YORK, May 28—The Times' special correspondent, who left the front at noon on Wednesday, about the time that Secretary Stanton's last dispatch from Grant was dated, says our army was about to move on the enemy's works, and two hours afterward he heard heavy cannonading and musketry firing on our left.

PHILADELPHIA, May 30—The Inquirer has a dispatch, dated Headquarters Army of the Potomac, en route to Richmond, via Hanover Ferry, May 27, six o'clock, a. m., stating that the whole army was again in motion, Gen. Hancock being in advance.

The army moves with a celerity never was known before. Lee evidently thought we were going to turn his left and give him battle on the North side of the South Anna, but he is out generaled, and by night we will be within four hours march of Richmond.

Once getting Lee in his works, we go round his flank and into his rear.

THE BIGGEST WELL IN OILDOM.—On the subject of big flowing oil wells, the Oil City Register remarks of the Hammond well, recently opened:

"At first, so great was the amount of water, that there was considerable trouble in exhausting it But now it is flowing oil, and clearing itself nicely from the water. It is estimated to flow nearly 600 barrels of oil per day, and over 750 barrels of water and oil, with a fair prospect of an increase.—This makes it the largest producing well in the oil region. The Noble well is producing scarcely 500 barrels per day. The Maple Shade scarcely 150 barrels of oil."

Conflict Between Federal and State Authority.

Ever since the rebellion broke out Governor Seymour has been trying to bring the authority of the State of New York into a conflict with that of the Federal Government. Not only is the Governor himself bent on this, but he is surrounded by men who, animated by the worst of motives, seek by this means to execute a purpose which contemplates all the consequences of resolute resistance by the State to the power and authority of the Federal Government—revolution in the North, whereby the Southern Rebellion will have a new chance of success.

Such a conflict, Governor Seymour and his unscrupulous advisers, whose sympathies are all with the rebels, have at different times and in various ways, done their best to bring about. Fortunately every time they have been thwarted, though in the instance of the great riot in July last, it was before hundreds of lives and millions of property had been destroyed by the ruffians whom Seymour addressed from the City Hall steps as his "friends."

The animus of Seymour's action is clearly indicated by the Albany Atlas and Argus, his home organ, which call on the Democratic members in Congress to abandon their seats and come home, where their presence is necessary to aid in the protection of the people's liberties. This revolutionary language uttered by the mouth-piece of the Governor, plainly indicates his wicked purpose. Whether he will be more successful than he has hitherto been in executing it, is yet to be seen. Certainly no man, with the true love of country in his heart would think of such a thing.—It is the expedient of the unscrupulous aspiring demagougue who would at no time hesitate to climb into the seats of power over the ruins of the Republic.

Seymour set out to be the next Presidential candidate of those who are in practical sympathy with the Rebellion. Circumstances turned against him, and it may be that he has chosen this method to recuperate his fortunes by placing himself in a new attitude before his party. What better can you expect of the man who proposed the acceptance by the North of the Jeff. Davis Constitution, with the arch traitor of President.—Pitts. Commercial.

MCCLELLAN AND THE ARMY OF THE POTOMAC.—The Burlington [Vt.] Times, says: Col Homer R. Stoughton, U. S. Sharpshooters, sends us the following "straw" about how McClellan stands in the army for the Potomac:

"A little incident occurred in my regiment yesterday which may have a tendency to open the eyes of some o our Vermont copperheads. It wa as follows: The men of the regimen desired to give an expression of ou feelings in regard to the coming election, consequently I arranged a bal lot-box, and selected an officer to at tend to it, and allowed all the me who desired to vote to put in thei own tickets. The result was: Tot vote cast, 356. For A. Lincoln, 295 Major General George B. McClellar 41; scattering, 20. Almost every ve eran voted for A. Lincoln.

RETALIATION.—The Springfiel (Mass.) Rebublican, discussing the la and practice of retaliation, furnish the following historical parallel:

During the war of 1812 there w no instance of retaliation by the infli tion of death, though the right w repeatedly asserted in the stronge terms. The most noteworthy i stance was when, after the battle Queenstown, the British select twenty-three Irish prisoners to be se to England and tried for high tre son. Scott threatened retaliation, a an equal number of British prison were set apart to await the fate the Irish The British thereup imprisoned forty-six Americans: a forty six British officers were imme ately selected and keep as hostage their safety and restoration. T matter finally subsided with no exe tion on either side.

☞ A Nashville letter writer t this story: "An Episcopal clergym who was ejected from his pulpit disloyalty, last week, asked Gen Rosseau to replace him in his par and his appeal was backed by an nest request to the General from B op Smith, of Kentucky, who has ken temporary supervision of Church in the State. The Bis who is a loyal man, had obtaine promise from the clergyman tha would read the prayer for the P dent, and thought he had better allowed to go back to his pulp But the General called the cle man into his office, and, after cate ing him and finding that he was a el at heart, he positively refuse reverse the order of expulsion.

THE STATE MILITIA.—The Harrisburgh Telegraph of the 24th ult., says: —Already companies of organized militia are being reported to the Adjutant General and if we may judge from the manner in which the appeal of Governor Curtin has been received; the department will soon have upon its books the record of a force numbering many thousands, the whole of which will be made available to the government in any emergency which may grow out of the great campaign that our armies are now fighting in Virginia. But the object is not so much to get a record of these military companies, as it is to secure the thorough organization and discipline of all men capable of bearing arms. If thus organized and disciplined, a sudden call for troops to repel invasion or for reinforcements to enable Grant to defeat Lee, can be responded to, not by mere raw militia, but by an army of soldiers fit to meet any foe capable of rendering the most valuable services to the government.

BERMUDA HUNDRED.—This locality stands in danger of becoming famous as the place where Gen. Butler dates his dispatches. Though steamers go to within four miles of Richmond, it is the terminus of deep navigation in James, and is three miles above City Point, which is twelve miles from Petersburg. This city is twenty-two miles from Richmond, on the railroad that runs through Weldon, Raleigh, Columbia and Charleston to Savannah which is the greatest artery of supply and communication of the Confederacy.

Taking Petersburg, General Butler will cut Lee's main reliance to continue battle, and can move over pretty good ground directly to Manchester, opposite Richmond, and the place would then be at his mercy. Or, making Petersburg, by moving to the right, he could strike the railroad further north with the same result.

☞Judge Catron, of the United States Supreme Court, required an attorney in Nashville, recently, to strike out the word 'West,' contained in a legal paper, declaring that he knew of no such State as West Virginia. This indicates that the Judge would, if the matter was to be brought before the supreme Bench, decide the unconstitutionality of the establishment of the New State of West Va.

☞The House of Representatives, recently, by a vote of 72 in the affirmative to 45 negatives, or nearly two to one, adopted the joint resolution to drop from the rolls of the army unemployed general officers.—Major Generals George B. M'Clellan and John C. Fremont are most prominent among those who will be affected by the act. It will result in an annual saving of something more than $200,000 to the country.

☞The Richmond papers, in referring to the death of Gen Jeb Suart, speak of his loss to the Confederacy as equal to that of Stonewall Jackson. In the same engagement in which Stuart was killed, they lost Col. H. Clay Pate, of Kansas Border Ruffian notoriety, and Lieut. Col. Robert Randolph—both killed outright.—The Rebel Gen. Gordon was killed.

ANECDOTE OF GEN. McCLELLAN.—Col. Metcalf, of Kentucky made a radical Union speech at a public meeting a few days since at which he related an anecdote of Gen. McClellan, showing how he regarded the rebel leaders. He says:

"I got my eyes opened on that young Napoleon in the spring of 1861. I went to see Gen. McClellan and in the course of the conversation I said to him that Jeff. Davis was a scoundrel and repudiator. He (McClellan) straightened himself up quickly and said: "I do assure you, sir, that you are mistaken. Jeff. Davis is a perfect gentleman, and will not do anything unbecoming a gentleman." Well, if a traitor, conspirator, thief, repudiator, and civil devil, who is instigating all this murder is his beau ideal of a 'perfect gentleman,' I hope our country may never be cursed with his standard of morality and virtue at the head of affairs."

DR TOBIAS' VENETIAN LINIMENT.—More testimony! this is to certify that for the last five years I have used in my family Dr. Tobias celebrated Venetian Liniment, and in every instance have found it fully equal to his recommendations. I have found it to give almost instantaneous relief in cases of toothache, croup, bilious colic, sore throat, pain in the chest and back, and rheumatism, and I cheerfully recommend its trial to every one afflicted with any of the above-named diseases.
